Mary Ann Eslinger, United States, 1974. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 229 x 152 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .TO THE READERS OF THIS BOOK; I wrote this short story for my daughters 1974 Christmas present. It has taken approximately two years to research in order to find these records recorded. There are four things I wish to add. They are the family tree from my four grandparents, their children and grandchildren; (2) a letter from Albert Pike asking Chief John Ross to be in alliance to the Confederate States of America; (3) a Confederate discharge paper of Gritts in the Cooweeskowie group; (4) and the seven clans of the United Keetoowah Society. Chief John Ross I should like to include the seven clans of the United Keetoowah Society. In our society, water is medicine and the Eternal Fire is a sacred light that burns forever. When medicine is used or made, the Cherokee name and the Clan membership name are used. A Cherokee must speak his language in order to become a member and to become more fully aware of the functions of the society. The seven Clans are: the clan of my father, Ani-Wa-Ya (Wolf); the clan of my mother, me, and my daughter, Ani-Saha-n or Ah-Nee-Sa-Hon-Nee (Blue); Ani-Kawi; ANi-Tsi-Skwa (bird); Ani-Wa-Di (Paint); Ani-Ga-Tage-Wi; and the Ani-Gi-La-Hi. Another small item that I would like to include is that Mary Guess was listed in Starr s Old Cherokee Families as the great-granddaughter of Sequoyah. Her parents were George Guess and his wife Girty. George s father was Tessey Guess who was the son of Sequoyah. (Starr page 366) Mary Guess is my mother s grandmother who married Charley Dirteater and their daughter Belle, is my grandmother. (Sequoyah was born about 1770 and died about...
