Let countries be permanent markets for each others produce; let their reciprocal relations be such that they cannot be broken without inflicting on each other the double suffering of privation and a glut of commodities; and they will no longer stand in need of naval armaments, which ruin them, and overgrown armies, which crush them; the peace of the world will not then be compromised by the caprice of a Thiers or of a Palmerston; and war will disappear for want of what supports it, for want of resources, inducements, pretexts, and popular sympathy. I am quite aware that I shall be reproached (it is the fashion of the day), with basing the fraternity of nations on mens personal interest--vile, prosaic selfinterest. Better far, it may be thought, that it should have had its basis in charity, in love, even in a little self-abnegation, and that, interfering somewhat with mens material comforts, it should have had the merit of a generous sacrifice. When shall we be done with these puerile declamations When will hypocrisy be finally banished from science When shall we cease to exhibit this nauseous contradiction between our professions and our practice We hoot at and execrate personal interest; in other words, we denounce what is useful and good (for to say that all men are interested in anything is to say that the thing is good in itself), as if personal interest were not the necessary, eternal and indestructible mainspring...
